The Panther showed her claws to the Venezuelans, but only her silken coat while here.

Sir Thomas still has designs on the America's cup. He is looking for a designer to build a boat for his fourth attempt to lift the cup. Brave old boy!

The Republicans of Norfolk hope to build up their party by nominating a bricklayer for the Legislature. A defeat will, of course, be very mortarfying to them.

Abundant evidence is already before the jury in the Tillman case to convict the defendant of murder in the first degree. But will "justice be done though the heavens fall?"

The editor of the Chicago News fires this connundrum at his readers in connection with the centennial of that city: "What is Chicago?" And this editor is one of the "oldest inhabitants" too.

"There is one advantage in being a Sultan, anyhow," remarks a contemporary. Yes, he is one of the few individuals who can afford to pay $900 every night for guards to protect him from assassins.

The letter of ex-Cashier Dewey, printed elsewhere in THE MORNING STAR to-day, is doubtless intended as a feeler. He probably wishes to learn the sentiment of those whose money he lost in speculation in regard to a compromise.

A Wisconsin editor calls on his subscribers to send in potatoes in lieu of cash, and says as his wife is nearly all Irish he must have the tubers. Presumably, she is already too sweet to need the potato that has made North Carolina famous.

Our versatile President strenuously denies the report of a correspondent that his weight, including the artillery he carries in his hip pocket, is 220 pounds. He solemnly declares that his adipose tissue is exactly that of a barrel of flour—196 pounds.

In the resolutions passed by a meeting of "prominent" negroes held in Washington recently, they declare that "it is not the desire, wish or purpose of the negroes, as a race, to seek or maintain social equality with the whites." But doesn't this mean, that these "prominent" negroes, as individuals, will seek that social equality? Fred Douglass was a very "prominent" negro, and he married a white woman.

SEPTEMBER SHIPPING HEAVIEST ON RECORD.

Monthly Statement of Cotton and Naval Stores—River Steamboat Traffic. Other Marine Intelligence.

Shipping at the local port for September breaks all records for that month in the history of Wilmington according to the report of the harbor master compiled yesterday. A total of 34 vessels with an aggregate of 41,697 tons, arrived during the month of which number 23 were American and 11 were foreign. The tonnage of the American craft was 23,109 and the vessels consisted of nine steamers, one barge and 13 schooners, the latter having a combined tonnage of 7,589, or an average of about 600 tons each. No vessel of 90 tons and under is taken into account by the harbor master. The foreign shipping consisted of 10 big cotton steamers of an average of about 2,000tons and one small schooner. The nearest approach to the record for September this year was in 1902 when 30 vessels entered with a tonnage of 41,603. The figures for other years for the month covering a period of nearly 10 years is as follows: 1901—27,463 tons; 1900—35,930; 1899—35,782; 1898—21,546; 1897—25,497; 1896—20,536; 1895—13,026.

Cotton receipts yesterday were 4,200 bales, against 4,528 same day last year. The monthly statement of receipts, exports and stocks of cotton and naval stores for September will be found in the commercial columns of to-day's STAR. It shows the receipts of cotton since Sept. 1st to have been 55,832 bales, against 86,702, same period last year. The naval store receipts for the month show a falling off in all items except spirits and crude, in which there is a slight gain.

Although the stage of water in the Cape Fear river is below the point of navigation, Capt. W. A. Robeson managed to bring the "Hurl" in last night at 7 o'clock from up the stream where she has been on a sand bar. The steamer "City of Fayetteville" will clear at sharp 2 o'clock this afternoon for points as far as Tar Heel. All the river boats are now landing at Mr. Love's wharf, near foot of Orange street.

Yesterday's Southport Standard says: "The government suction dredge 'Cape Fear' left yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock for Philadelphia to work on the Delaware river. The 'Cape Fear,' we learn, will be absent until about the first of next December, when in all probability she will return to resume work on the Cape Fear river and bar. The entire crew of the steamer went on her to Philadelphia."

Schooner "Nellie Floyd," having completed discharging cargo of stone for the extensive construction work at Fort Caswell, passed out at Southport yesterday, light, for Georgetown, S. C. Schooners "Gem," Capt. Bunker, from Boston, and "Harold C. Beecher," from New York, arrived yesterday, the latter with cargo of salt for the D. L. Gore Co.

ROADS FOR PORTER.

Young White Man Convicted of Seduction Sentenced Yesterday to Three Years.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT.

Interesting Appeal From Mayor's Judgment Being Heard—Several Sent to the Rock Pile—Order and Judgment in Civil Suits.

Ernest Porter, the young white man against whom a jury in the Superior Court Wednesday night, after the day's session was done, returned a verdict convicting him of seduction under promise of marriage, was brought into court early yesterday afternoon and sentenced by Judge Neal to a term of three years on the county roads. The maximum penalty is five years, but the jury recommended the young man to the extreme mercy of the court and Judge Neal split the heaviest penalty in about half. As before stated young Porter is a genteel looking fellow and says he came from near Goldsboro.

Yesterday's session of the court was devoid of cases of unusual importance. When the hour for recess came at 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon the court was just completing the trial of an appeal from the mayor's court in which Henyard Bordeaux, a young white man living in Fifth ward, had been fined $5 and costs for disorderly conduct on Castle, near Sixth street, about three months ago. The arrest was made by Policeman G. R. Holt, who employed Herbert McClammy, Esq., to assist Solicitor Duffy in the prosecution. Brooke G. Empie and Woodus Kellum, Esqs., are defending the action. Young Bordeaux claims that he was not disorderly as contemplated in the ordinance and the prosecution claims that he was. The hour was a little after midnight and singing on the street, complained of by the officer, was declared by one witnesss for defendant to have been "Rock of Ages." All the testimony had been heard and counsel for defence had gone to the jury when a recess for the day was taken.

During the day two civil suits were heard. In the matter of the Cape Fear Lumber Co. vs. Acme Machine Works, Rountree & Carr, counsel for plaintiff, submitted to a non suit. In the foreclosure proceedings entitled Knickerbocker Trust Co. vs. American Wood Specialty Co., an order was made changing conditions of publication.

Court met at 9:30 o'clock and the sheriff returned the 15 talesmen ordered summoned for the day with the exception of J. F. Jordan, J. A. Kelly, C. L. Schulken, J. A. Riggs, Lee Grier and D. J. Morgan, who could not be found. J. A. Brothers, M. J. Corbett, J. M. Curtis and M. Marshburn were excused. Criminal cases were disposed of as follows:

Ivy McClammy and Rosa Thompson, f. and a.; verdict guilty.

Rachel Revels, assault with deadly weapon; guilty of simple assault and required to pay costs.

Henry Davis, larceny; plead guilty and was required to pay costs.

Mamie Garfield, assault with deadly weapon and carrying concealed weapons; 12 months in jail with privilege to commissioners to hire out.

Joe McKoy, selling unwholesome meat; verdict not guilty.

Henry Thompson, assault with deadly weapon and forcible trespass; 6 months on roads.

The jury which has the Bordeaux case in hearing is composed of the following: A. J. Hewlett, E. F. Lewis, Freeman E. Wood, Geo. E. Leftwitch, R. G. Holmes, B. F. Bryan, W. Gleason, R. A. Biddle, J. H. McDougall, J. H. Pickett, H. Gerdes and Fred Griffith.

Wever and Miss Sadie Booker will be Miss Cantwell's assistants; Miss Maie Galloway, musician. A complimentary soiree to the children will be given Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

BRILLIANT RECEPTION AT Y. M. C. ASSOCIATION.

Young Men of the City Welcomed Last Night—Delightful Programme—The New Year's Outlook.

The annual public reception of the Y. M. C. A. last night was a brilliant affair and was attended by fully 400 people, who were most hospitably received. The interior of the handsome building was profusely decorated and upon every hand there were evidences of intense interest and enthusiasm. The ladies of the Woman's Auxiliary acted graciously as a receiving party, and after the formal exercises a social session was enjoyed in the reception room, during the progress of which dainty refreshments were served by the ladies under the direction of Mrs. Mitt Moore. The Social Committee, composed of Messrs. J. T. King, chairman; H. E. O'Keef, W. L. Williford, W. A. Little and J. A. McGeachy, had general charge of the affair and certainly acquitted themselves most excellently.

The formal exercises were observed in the large main auditorium of the building and a most pleasing programme was carried out. It was as follows, several of the participants having been obliged to respond to enthusiastic encores:

"Silent the Night" by the Association Male Quartette, composed of Mr. W. L. Williford, 1st tennor; Mr. Chas. Dushan, 2nd tenor; Mr. H. E. O'Keef, 1st bass; Mr. R. H. Grant, 2nd bass.

Prayer by Rev. Dr. A. D. McClure.

Vocal Solo, "Absent," by Miss Nora Scott.

Annual Report by Dr. W. C. Galloway, the president.

Piano Solo, Mr. James Charles Craft.

"Value of Association Work," by Dr. McClure.

"Dreams of the Olden Time" by the Association Male Quartette.

Dr. McClure's address upon the Value of Association Work was one of the best delivered at the Y. M. C. A. in some time. He traced in a measure the history of the Association and drew therefrom practical illustrations of the benefit the organization has been to the young men of the city.

The annual report read by President Galloway was replete with interesting statistical information regarding Association work. In the religious department forty-eight men's and boy's meetings were held, during the year with an attendance of 1884. The men's bible class met 53 times, attendance 602; boy's class, 36 meetings, attendance 381. There were 33 professed conversion; 145 were personally dealt with; 12 united with the church and 19 requested prayer.

In the physical department 357 gymnasium classes were instructed; attendance at gymnasium was 6,113; 14 public games and exhibitions were given and 16,723 baths were enjoyed.

Ten social events were given attended by 1785 persons.

In the educational department 2,288 persons visited the reading room and 540 volumes were drawn from the library.

Invitations were issued during the year to the number of 22,700; 14 visits were made to the sick; 9 were personally assisted; 27 committee meetings were held, with 198 attendance; 46 persons were directed to boarding houses; 33,267 visits were made to the building; 4 letters of introduction were given. The present membership is 336 and all bills are paid, with a balance of $31 in the treasury. In September, 1902, there was a gain of 26 in membership; September, 1903, a gain of 43. Renewals have been very prompt and solicitation has been needed in only a few cases.

The Association's Winter work always begins in earnest after the annual reception and Secretary Dushan, the obliging and competent secretary, has everything in readiness for the best season, perhaps, in the history of the organization. The Junior gymnasium class begins work this afternoon at 4 o'clock; the business men at 6:30 P. M. and the young men Saturday night at 8:30 o'clock. Monday night the class in stenography will organize. Ten students have already entered.

Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock the first of a series of afternoon meetings for men will be addressed by the scholarly Dr. J. A. B. Scherer, of Charleston, S. C. He is a young man of commanding appearance and a fine speaker. He should be heard by a large audience.

Brunswick Superior Court.

Judge Henry R. Bryan, of Newbern, and Solicitor C. C. Lyon, of Elizabethtown, were here yesterday on their way home from Southport where they held Brunswick Superior Court. The term adjourned late Wednesday afternoon after having been in session only two days. No important cases were tried though fines of $35 and costs were imposed upon one or two defendants for carrying concealed weapons and assault with a deadly weapon. All the civil matters were continued except two divorce suits. Mr. J. C. Evans, of Town Creek, was foreman of the grand jury.

Change of City Ticket Agents.

Mr. H. W. Nash, Atlantic Coast Line city ticket agent at Wilmington, has been transferred to a clerical position in the treasurer's office and will be succeeded by Mr. B. W. Arrington, of Richmond. For five years Mr. Arrington was ticket agent at Florence and later occupied a similar position in the Hotel Jefferson at Richmond. The transfer of the office will be made this week.

FOUGHT TO A FINISH.

Police Sergeant Burnett Had a Strenuous Encounter With Desperate Negro.

LASTED FORTY-FIVE MINUTES

Criminal's Arrest Accomplished When Officer Was About Exhausted—Loss of an Ear—Timely Assistance. Highway Robbery Charge.

Surrounded by a horde of unfriendly negroes, the lone and solitary white man present in the rear of a shanty in the disreputable locality known as "Bull Neck," near Tenth and Mulberry streets, Police Sergeant C. S. Burnett for three-quarters of an hour yesterday afternoon about 5 o'clock, engaged a desperate colored criminal in a hand to hand struggle for life or death. The negro was Walter J. Lucas, an ex-convict, about 21 years of age and the officer's superior physically, who was wanted for snatching Mr. N. M. Hunt's watch Saturday night at Tenth and Princess streets, an account of which appeared in the STAR Sunday morning. Thanks to the indomitable pluck of the officer and the timely arrival of Theo. Swann and two or three other white men when Sergeant Burnett was about exhausted, the desperate negro was finally conquered and now lies in a cell at the police station, repentant but unforgiven. One of his ears is gone, strange to say, and Sergeant Burnett pleads guilty to having bitten it off and to having spit it out on the ground where the hand to hand encounter took place. The officer received a slight cut on the bridge of his nose and his left eye was nearly gouged out by the claws of the negro fiend. Dr. Harper attended him and the injuries will likely not prove serious. The negro will be arraigned in the Mayor's court to-day at noon and will probably be sent immediatly over to the Superior Court, where Judge Neal's proclivity for inspiring greater respect for officers of the law will doubtless assure the criminal substantial punishment.

Ever since Mr. Hunt reported his robbery at the police station Saturday at midnight, Sergeant Burnett has been quietly at work on the case and Wednesday the stolen watch was found at the store of William Warren, colored, Tenth and Mulberry streets, where Lucas had pawned it for groceries to the value of $1.50. Yesterday Sergeant Burnett for obvious reasons put on citizen's clothes and went out in search of the negro. He carried no club, for that would betray his mission, and he slipped in on Lucas when the latter was least expecting it. Lucas jumped up and demanded to see the officer's badge. It was shown and fighting for time the negro asked to see the warrant. Before Sergeant Burnett could produce it, the negro tried to evade arrest and the clash came. The officer attempted to put his nippers on Lucas but the negro engaged him too strenuously for that. It was a fight to the finish. One negro summoned out of the crowd of about fifty who had congregated about the scene jumped in ostensibly to assist the officer, but Sergeant Burnett was led to believe he was giving aid to Lucas. Once the sergeant had the negro's head under his arm and his pistol upon his forehead. He could have killed him by pulling the trigger, but, despite the provocation, Sergeant Burnett said the pity of it overcame him. His judgment as an officer upon that occasion did him credit. Finally Mr. Swann and other assistance arrived and the police officer, as bloody as a beef, came down to the station house in the patrol wagon with a youthful but desperate criminal. When searched at the police station the negro had an open knife in his pocket which no doubt prompted the boast to the officer during the encounter, that he would "die before he would be arrested." He admirably suited his actions to his words.

PRETTY WEDDING AT WHITEVILLE.

Mr. Patrick H. Sears Claims a Fair Bride From Columbus.

Mr. and Mrs. Patrick H. Sears, of Whiteville, arrived in the city Wednesday night and left yesterday morning on an extended bridal tour to Philadelphia and other Northern cities. Mr. and Mrs. Sears, nee Miss Maggie Smith, the attractive young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Smith, of Whiteville, were married at the pretty home of the bride by the Rev. G. H. Barnes Wednesday evening at 8:30 o'clock in the presence of a large and fashionable assemblage of guests. An elaborate reception at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. J. B. Schulken, followed the ceremony and the bride and groom received many happy congratulations upon their union for life. A wealth of beautiful presents were received.

Among those from out of-town who attended the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Sears and Miss Bessie Sears and Miss Lydia Yates, of Wilmington; Mrs. A. W. Daily, of Connecticut; Mrs. J. M. Carroll and Mrs. E. T. Williams, of Lake Waccamaw.

Pistol in Her Bosom.

Health Officer D. W. Willis, who is a special policeman by virtue of his position in the health department, yesterday afternoon arrested Tom Williams and Kate Smith, both colored, for disorderly conduct at Eighth and Castle street. When searched at the police station a pistol was found in the woman's bosom and she will be held today at noon upon the additional charge of carrying concealed weapons.

DEFAULTING CASHIER DEWEY WILL RETURN.

Present Suffering Greater Than Law Can Inflict, He Says in a Letter to the News and Observer.

Below will be found in full a letter received by Mr. Josephus Daniels from Thos. W. Dewey, defaulting cashier of the Merchants and Farmers' Bank, of Newbern, which letter was published in yesterday's News and Observer. The letter was addressed in a lady's handwriting and bore the postmark "Golds. and Greens., Sept. 30, 1903," indicating that it had been mailed on the train at or between Goldsboro and Greensboro and stamped as above by the railway mail clerk. The letter is in Dewey's familiar handwriting, and is accompanied by the query, "Will you do me the kindness to publish this?" Then follows the letter, which gives no hint of the ex cashier's whereabouts, when, how or where he will return:

Josephus Daniels, Esq., Editor, Raleigh, N. C.

My Dear Sir: There have incidentally fallen into my hands some of the reports published in both Raleigh and Charlotte papers concerning my defalcations, etc., which I denounce as malicious lies—one in particular, two columns long, with scarcely a semblance of truth from the beginning to the end. The facts are grave enough, but I will swear by all past associations and by my hope of forgiveness by the Great Judge of all hearts, that the true shortage will not and cannot be made by HONEST men to aggregate ONE HALF of amounts published.

I have not as yet attempted any defence, and if I ever do there will be a few shattered panes in the Glass Houses of some of those "prominent families of Newbern," who seem to have "swallowed their consciences" (if they had any to swallow) and are now so eagerly and harshly sitting in judgment against me; and while I say this, I have not a word of reproach for any one who is trying to do me justice, whatever the penalty of that justice may be. This I consider the unpardonable sin—to speak maliciously or disparagingly of human souls, hungering for hope. When the man without brains does it he can be pardoned for knowing no better. When the man with brains does it, he should be ashamed to look his fellow mortals in the eyes. It is a sin ten times deeper dyed than giving a stone to those who ask for bread, or giving poison to those who ask for a cup of cold water. My heart has never been intentionally evil, nor am I the recipient of any ill-gotten gains. I realize to the fullest capabilities of a proud and sensitive nature (for the pall has hung hourly before my eyes,) the turpitude and lasting shame (in their every phase) of my errors, and remorse must be my eternal portion in this life. I have never had any other idea than that of returning voluntarily, if not otherwise, when I felt that I had the strength and courage to do so, for my present sufferings are far greater than the Law of man can inflict. I wish to live only for the innocent ones dependent upon me. There is nothing we cannot live down and rise above, and overcome. I would rather learn sympathy and nobleness of heart through sin than never learn it at all. Truthfully,

T. W. DEWEY.

"PANTHER" DEPARTED YESTERDAY.

German Ship of War Passed Out Yesterday for British West Indies.

Lines were cast off from the Custom House wharf, the harbor craft shrieked a farewell salute, people along the water front waved their hands, handkerchiefs and hats in adieu and the German gunboat "Panther" with officers on deck bowing and lifting their caps to friends ashore, at 9 o'clock yesterday morning glided out into the stream and a few minutes later passed down the river after a pleasant visit of four days in port during which they were royally entertained by the whole people of Wilmington. At noon the distinguished war craft passed over the bar at Southport and by this time is well on her voyage to the British West Indies.

As the boat drifted out from the Custom House wharf the marine band aboard came on deck and played "Dixie," "America" and other national airs as a compliment to those to whom the officers were indebted for a royal reception. Capt. T. M. Morse, navigating officer of the North Carolina Naval Brigade, piloted the ship down the river and to him as the last Wilmingtonian aboard the officers expressed themselves as most highly honored and entertained here, especially at the oyster roast by the Howard Relief Co.

Capital Production of New York Success at Academy Monday Night.

The Academy of Music Monday night will offer a classical treat in the performance to be given of "When Her Soul Speaks," by the charming American actress, Miss Eva Mountford and a metropolitan supporting company. The play is now one of the most popular on the American stage and is being accorded high words of praise by the press. Wednesday's Durham Sun says, under head of "A Strong Play:"

"When Her Soul Speaks" was presented at the New Academy of Music on Tuesday night by Miss Eva Mountford and her company. While the audience was not so large, it was an appreciative one.

The play was presented in four acts and is a strong production. Miss Mountford played the title role in a most admirable manner and was well supported by the entire company. Mr. Elmer Grandin, the author of the play, was in the cast and played the character of Rev. David Dangerfield.

The costumes worn by the ladies of the company were from Lord & Taylor, New York, and the scenery by the George Purvis Construction Company, New York.

Sale of seats will commence at Plummer's to-morrow morning. There will be no advance in prices.

WILLIAM H. BERNARD,

WILMINGTON, N. C.

FRIDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 2.

A VAIN SCHEME.

Bishop Turner is one of the leading thinkers of his race and makes a good argument in defence of whatever position he assumes. That he has the best interests of his people at heart cannot be doubted, in the face of his many years of sincere labor among them for their material and moral upbuilding. Yet after reading his last speech, we remain of the conviction that the Bishop's emigration scheme for the settlement of the race question is impracticable. In time to come it is possible that the scheme may be feasible, but that time is not yet in sight, and it may not be within the current century. Incidentally it should be mentioned that this segregation solution of the race problem has been preached for a number of years by Bishop Turner. Whether or not it originated with him we do not know, but we do know that he had been advocating the project for a long time before the idea was taken up by some of the politicians and publicists who are now writing and lecturing so eloquently upon it.

In the course of an address delivered in Atlanta Sunday evening, which we printed yesterday, Bishop Turner declared his belief that 4,000,000 negroes of the United States would leave this country and return to the homes of their ancestors in Africa if they were provided with the means of direct transportation at reasonable cost. That would take practically half of the colored population out of the country. If there are that many negroes here who desire to emigrate, why do they not provide the transportation themselves? Why do they wait for somebody else to provide it?

The negroes are not a propertyless race. Government and State statistics show that they have progressed in wealth in a most gratifying manner during the past ten or a dozen years. And 4,000,000 of them could quickly raise the money to build ships to take them to Africa if they really wished to go. While the government cannot order their deportation, it cannot hold them in the country against their will. They are free to go if they want to. Why is it these 4,000,000 negroes do not raise a fund of twenty-five cents per capita and establish a million-dollar line to Africa? Is it not because they lack the continuity of purpose, the constructive faculty, to enable them to accomplish the feat? And if, through this failing, they cannot build a steamship line, how is it to be expected that they would be able to organize and operate a free government?

The Pilgrim Fathers, to whom the Bishop referred, did not wait for the English government to establish a subsidized line of ships to take them to the new world; they hustled for themselves and came over in craft of their own providing. They were of a nation-building race, which, as we said some weeks ago, the blacks are not. It was because of this racial difference that the Pilgrim Fathers emigrated to escape oppression, whereas the blacks remain, and will continue for years to remain, under what they claim to be oppression. But are they oppressed, rather than repressed, in the better meaning of the latter term? We do not think the history of the world will show a race that enjoyed so many rights and privileges so shortly after emerging from the darkness of savagery into the light of civilization as the negro race is enjoying in the United States.

Segregation would settle the race question, to be sure. But if it is impractical, not to say impossible, what is the use of advocating it.—Savannah News, Dem.

THE TEXAS COTTON REPORT.

The cotton reports from Texas, sent out as a result of the investigations of the Houston Post, are startling. The statement is made, as printed in our news columns yesterday, that on account of the ravages of the boll weevil, the boll worm, the sharpshooter and the dry weather, the estimate which was put at 6,000,000 bales a while ago, is now reduced to 2,500,000!

The Post is an honest and entirely responsible newspaper, and if its sources of information are as correct and reliable as the Post believes them to be, the facts are to be regarded more with concern than enthusiasm in Georgia. Of course, if true, the conditions reported will redound to the immediate benefit of the Georgia cotton growers, and cotton will go higher for this season's crop at least. But their are two serious considerations to be confronted. The one is the steady advance of the boll weevil eastward. The other is that a crop far short of the demand for consumption will greatly stimulate the production of cotton in other semi-tropical regions of the world already making dangerous advances.

The wise policy of the South is, if it can be done, to produce little enough cotton to demand a remunerative price, but enough to supply the world at that price without forcing the development of its production in Africa and in other regions where it can be grown.

The old idea that the South alone can produce cotton is gradually wearing away as the dark continent is being opened up to agriculture. At present the world is after the gold and the diamonds in Africa. After a while the world be after the cotton that can be raised there also.

If the Texas report is anywhere near the real truth, and for the reasons given, the pleasurable anticipations for a higher price than now ranges for the Georgia crop are mixed, in thoughtful minds, with a degree of anxiety for the future.—Macon Telegraph.

CURRENT COMMENT

—— Recently Turkey got a large shipment of cartridges from Germany. Yesterday a Turkish warship was launched at Elswick, on the Tyne, in England. Thus does Christian Europe devote its best efforts to maintaining peace in the East.—Indianapolis News, Dem.

—— A Chicago undertaker took an afternoon off the other day and asked his wife to run things in his absence. While busy at his desk she found a letter from another woman, who made ardent love to her husband. Though his inamorata had advised him to "Tear this up at once," the undertaker neglected to do so. Now he feels as if he were superintending the last sad rites at his own funeral.—Savannah News.

—— "Wherever he goes our haughty President snubs somebody or other. At the unveiling of a monument commemorating Manila he snubbed Dewey. When Miles retired, the President snubbed him. At the opening exercises of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, he snubbed Thomas Jefferson. At Antietam, he snubbed George B. McClellan. Wonder if there is anybody, living or dead, who has done something great and has not been snubbed by our little swashbuckler?"—Memphis Commercial-Appeal, Dem.

—— It can hardly make Senator Hanna feel very comfortable to hear that a Northern negro named Wilson recently obtained about $6,000 from men of his race near Thomasville, in this State, for the purpose of pushing the Senator's hopeless proposition to pension ex-slaves. Nor can he be pleased to learn that the warnings of white people are disregarded and looked upon with suspicion by the deluded negroes. The Senator knows better than any one else what his motives were in introducing the defunct bill, and he may be able to justify himself in his own mind, but in that case the harm he has done is likely to trouble him not less but more.—Macon Telegraph, Dem.

—— The real objection to the action in the case of Miss Todd does not rest on the technical points which have been urged, but on the broad ground that Delaware stands in a position which puts her outside of the ordinary political code. The relation of Senators to appointments is advisory. In most cases the advice may well be accepted as controlling. But the responsibility, after all, rests with the appointing power, and it presumably recognizes the advisory relation only when it ought to be recognized on just public and political grounds. The country feels—and Republicans not less than others—that the conditions in Delaware are exceptional and ought to be treated as exceptional. But that is a question not so much for the Postmaster General as for the President.—Philadelphia Press, Rep.

—— The spread of yellow fever on the Texas border show that little attention is paid down that way to modern methods of controlling the disease. If it is possible to let yellow fever patients come into Havana without in anyway endangering the health of the inhabitants, it ought to be possible to supervise and control the disease in Mexico also. Dr. Guiteras, of Havana, is now in Laredo. We expect him to put the best methods in practice and stamp out the fever in short order. The method is no mystery. It consists simply in covering every patient with mosquito netting, so that mosquitoes cannot get at him and acquire the fever infection and convey it from the sick to the well. Taken at the beginning, there should be no spread of the disease; even taken now, the further spread can be very soon prevented.—Mobile Register, Dem.

Counsel For English Prisoners.

It is a curious fact that the laws of England make no provision for the defense of persons charged with criminal offenses when they have not the means to employ their own lawyers. In very serious cases the bench usually takes it upon itself to provide counsel, but thousands of persons are prosecuted each year without any legal advice. A bill has lately been introduced into the house of commons which seeks to remedy in part this state of affairs, but it does not go to the extent of having the state pay for the services of the counsel, as is the case in this country. It merely provides for voluntary service on the part of the lawyers.

A Loss to Science.

Through the carelessness of a workman the valuable collection of busts and skulls once the property of Gall, the founder of phrenology, in the museum of Baden, near Vienna, has been seriously damaged. The man had been directed to break through a wall, but did so at the wrong place, with the result that some hundreds of specimens on the other side were thrown down and for the most part broken to fragments. The exhibits were original and irreplacable, and it will be possible to repair only a very few of them.

Always Felt Tired

1329 Hawthorne Avenue, Minneapolis, Minn., August 26, 1903.

MRS. PROCTER WILLIAMS SAYS: "My greatest trouble seemed to be a general weakness and all-over-tired feeling. I did not expect to be ever strong again. I was in a pitiful state when my husband, who had been benefitted by the use of Paine's Celery Compound, urged me to try it. At once after I began taking the remedy my headaches disappeared. My nerves became strong. I consider my cure a miracle, for I had tried a great many doctors and different remedies, and spent hundreds of dollars in vain."

MISQUOTATIONS.

Lines and Phrases That Are Habitually Rendered Incorrectly.

It is curious to observe how many lines and phrases there are which have been habitually misquoted for so long a time that the inaccuracy has become crystallized and the new form has taken the place of the old, even with people who profess some love for literature.

The young person of average education will glibly quote "A man convinced against his will is of the same opinion still" regardless of the fact that conviction is the assent of the will to a particular proposition, and that what Butler wrote was "He that complies against his will is of his own opinion still," which is not, like the stock version, rank nonsense. The Bible does not tell us that "the tongue is an unruly member," but that it is "an unruly evil," or, according to the revised version, "a restless evil; it is full of deadly poison."

Portia does not plead, in the words usually ascribed to her, that mercy "falleth like the gentle dew from heaven," but that "it droppeth as the gentle rain from heaven," and Lorenzo in the same play distrusts "the man who hath no music in himself," not "in his soul," which is the common version. Coleridge did not write "and not a drop to drink," but "nor any drop to drink."

Prior's line was not "small," but "fine by degrees and beautifully less." Gray did not describe the "even tenor," but "the noiseless tenor of their way." Even our pastors now and then violate the rubric by putting "just" before "cause" instead of before "impediment" in publishing banns of marriage, and more than one Biblical passage might be mentioned as being frequently misquoted. Yet time was when a slip of this kind was held to be almost as discreditable as a false quantity. The familiar misquotations of Milton's "fresh woods and pastures new" and Pope's "a little learning is a dangerous thing" have been deplored times without number, and can never be got rid of.

Like Men or Like Brutes.

John Sartain, the eminent engraver of Philadelphia, knew Edgar Allan Poe intimately. He was free to admit that Poe in his youth had been somewhat profligate, but he always denied stoutly that in later life the poet was anything like the drunkard gossip paints him.

"At the University of Virginia," Mr. Sartain once said, "Poe did drink too much. In the middle of his freshman year there he gave a peach and honey party. Peach and honey was the drink of those days—a mixture of honey and peach brandy that was as overpowering as it was sweet and pleasant.

"Poe sat at the head of the table. 'Boys,' he said to his guests, 'shall we behave like men or like brutes?'

"'Like men, of course,' a senior answered in a rebuking voice.

"'Then,' said Poe, 'we'll all get drunk, for that is something brutes never do.'"

Result Was the Same.

The two youngsters were neighbors. The one owned a mischievous fox terrier, the other a cat. A day or two ago the owner of the dog came over the wall with a sad countenance and after some desultory conversation said:

"You know my dog Floss and your cat Joey?"

"Yes."

"Well, my dog had a piece of meat, and he thought your cat was going to take it away from him."

"Thought!" exclaimed the other. "What makes you say the dog thought? You know dogs don't think; they instinct."

"Anyhow," said the owner of the dog, "I don't care whether he thought it or whether he merely instincted it. But anyhow he killed your cat."

Absent Minded.

"Butterfly is awfully absent minded."

"What is his latest?"

"He was driving a nail and hammered his thumb. He howled and put the nail in his mouth and tried to fling his thumb on the floor."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

ALL OVER THE HOUSE.

Old Fashioned Carpets In Again—Linoleums That Look Like Oak.

Old fashions come in again after a certain term of years, a little improvement added, and carpets are no exception, for the large set figures and designs of forty years ago are again "all the style." The same vivid colors are used also, but whether the public will accept them is yet to be decided. Even the salesmen cannot be induced to say they consider them artistic and cannot wax enthusiastic over them. However, there are some very pretty two toned ingrains in scroll patterns that are both pleasing to the eye and satisfactory to wear. There are also beautiful brussels and velvet carpets in Persian and Japanese patterns.

Linoleums are many and divers in design this year. Many of the usual tile designs are seen, but the new ones have flower designs that are very pretty indeed and would be nice for dining rooms. If one cares to pay the price, there is a new asbestus floor covering that so closely imitates oak flooring that a close observer would scarcely detect it from the genuine. Many people are putting it around the edge of the floor outside the center rug.—Stockman and Farmer.

Sofa Pillow Notions.

Many of the new sofa pillows have the corners gathered in, so as to give a round effect, and are then finished with a flat button covered with the same material, as large as a fifty cent piece. The button is fastened on very firm and flat, and no cord or other trimming is used to cover the seams. The buttons are merely wooden molds covered with the same material as the pillow. This seems a very sensible style of pillow for porch use in the summer. Madras or gingham in broad showy stripes, which may be bought for 10 cents a yard, makes a good covering for porch pillows, being pretty and easily laundered. Flowery cretonnes, though much used for this purpose, do not usually wash so well. We have seen some very handsome sofa pillows covered with leather decorated in burnt work and finished around the edges with leather fringe. They were intended for use with mission furniture, or, rather, to decorate it, since no one would willingly seek to rest against such a cushion. It would be several shades less comfortable than the horsehair furniture covering of our grandmothers.—Rural New Yorker.

Rhubarb Jelly.

On account of the watery consistency of the fruit it cannot be made into jelly as readily as most fruits. A fine jelly and one specially suitable for serving with game can be made if the following directions are observed: Let the rhubarb heat on the back of the stove until the juice flows freely. Strain the juice through a jelly bag. Do not squeeze the bag into the jelly, but use only what will drip of itself. The bag can be squeezed into a different vessel, and the liquid thus gained can be readded to the pulp of the rhubarb and made into jam. Take the rhubarb juice and boil gently for ten minutes. Measure and to each pint allow a pound of granulated sugar. Boil until a little poured out on a cold plate will set nicely. Do not measure the juice before it has been boiled. Such treatment is needed to reduce the water and make the pure juice and sugar jelly properly. If care is taken in the boiling of the jelly it turns out a pretty color and is very desirable for garnishing various dishes.

Double Covers For Comforters.

Comforters are easier kept clean with a double cover. The first one needs to be only strong enough to hold the batting, such as loosely woven cheese cloth. The outer cover may be finer and firmer and wash goods. The tucking is mostly done through the first cover. The last cover is more like a sack and caught only near the corners and once or twice through the center each way, so that removing for laundry purposes may be an easy task.

To Remove Stains From White Goods.

Old stains may be removed from white goods by soaking the article in a weak solution of chloride of lime, a tablespoonful of lime to eight quarts of water. Old fruit stains, mildew and so forth will yield. The spots should be gently rubbed between thumb and fingers occasionally. Rinse in clean water after the stains have disappeared.

Russian Forests.

On the old principle that misery loves company it is good to hear of a country whose forests have been wasted even worse than our own. Consul General Guenther reports from Frankfort that while the forests of Sweden amount to 48.6 per cent of its whole area, in Russia they are but 36.7 per cent and in Russian Poland only 21.3 per cent. Russian forest resources are less than even in Austria-Hungary and the United States, and the czar's government is studying ways and means of reforesting.

COTTON MARKETS

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—The cotton market opened very firm at an advance of seven to thirteen points on the higher cables and a bullish crop report showing a deterioration for the month of 11.8 per cent. in the condition of the crop. For a time the market, influenced by fears that the government report on Saturday would show even a worse falling off, ruled very active and firm with October shorts particularly free buyers. European houses and the South also bought liberally and the centres representing the New Orleans bull crowd seemed to have orders for January. There was not a little realizing on the advance, however, and shortly after the opening this proved sufficient to ease prices off slightly from the top. The estimates for to-morrow's receipts at leading points were disappointing, however, and while the weather had a favorable average the market did not lose its firmness of undertone, being rallied again before midday and selling up to a level net ten to seventeen points higher on further outburst of covering and buying for long account which was encouraged as it became evident that the exports for the day would reach a much larger total than the receipts at the ports. Later in the afternoon, however, there was a renewal of liquidation and with some bear pressure the market sold well down from the top. The close was steady and three to seven points higher. Sales were 600,000 bales. Spot market was marked down twenty-seven points to 10.25, in accordance with the current quotation for the spot month.

TUSKEGEE, Ala., July 28, 1898.—DR. C. J. MOFFETT—My Dear Sir: Justice to you demands that I should give you my experience with your excellent medicine, TEETHINA. Our little girl, just thirteen months old, has had much trouble teething. Every remedy was exhausted in the shape of prescriptions from family physicians. Her bowels continued to pass off pure blood and burning fever continued for days at a time. Her life was almost despaired of. Her mother determined to try TEETHINA, and in a day or two there was a great change—new life had returned—the bowels were regular, and thanks to TEETHINA, the little babe is now doing well.

Yours, etc., D. W. McIVER, Editor and Proprietor Tuskegee (Ala.) News.

FOR THE CLEVER WOMAN.

Some Ways In Which She Can Improve Her Wardrobe.

The economically minded woman is being helped by the manufacturers and shopkeepers. She may purchase at a comparatively small cost handsome robes, which she can put together herself. There are also any number of pretty hat shapes that only require a bow or a bunch of flowers for trimming.

Some of last year's garments can be renovated at a small cost. Plain bell sleeves are no longer popular, so these may be gathered or plaited at the back into a wide cuff of some fancy material or silk covered with lace or embroidered galloon. This cuff may be run off into a pointed tab at the back, where some soft, full lace or plisse chiffon may be added. Skirts frayed at the edge may be renovated by a band of velvet or silk with tabs or straps of the material standing upright or set in groups. This is really a pretty finish and is admirable for linen skirts which show stains or other signs of wear and tear and also for figured cottons, as plain colored goods may be used for the border.

The silk cashmere or crape skirt which fits closely around the hips has a trick of growing glossy or shiny there, and this defect may be concealed by simulating a yoke with braid.

The illustration shows a smart stole of white chiffon.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

THIN MATERIALS.

Voiles of Fine, Silky Makes—Chiffons and Muslins.

Voiles of fine silky make are called by other names, such as chiffon voile, eolienne silk crape, etc. They are really very similar fabrics and lend themselves readily to drapery. They are mostly manufactured in pale shades, rose pink and pale green being the most popular in Paris, though a very light biscuit and pale blue are much in evidence.

Hand painted chiffons and muslins are a great feature of the gala day frocks, and these gowns for the greater part are arranged with a fichu of wonderful lace and embroidery. The skirts and frills are very full.

Pompadour sashes and pompadour ribbon are in vogue and are charming for the debutante either for day or for evening wear.

Hats are quite simple. Milliners are using the best shapes of all periods, and, as usual, the apparently simple lines taken from the old masters make the most successful headgear. A great many black and white chip, cream and black leghorn and lace hats are seen.

WHITE MULL WAIST.

The useful and practical hat is composed of all kinds of straw, biscuit and black, scarlet and white and navy being the favorites.

The plain, orthodox tailor made gown is making a bold bid for popularity and will have its own following, but the average woman loves elaboration, and the modern tailor frock has suited her so well that she will be loath to accept the plainer garment.

The cut shows a pretty waist of white mull with bands of shirring.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

After the Trial.

In a trial in England a man had been arrested for stealing rabbits, articles belonging to him having been found after a sudden flight. The poacher pleaded that the things were not his. His lawyer took up the plea and won the case. "I suppose I go for good?" asked the poacher, turning to the magistrate as he left the dock. "Yes," was the answer. "And I can't be brought up again for this 'ere offense?" "No," said the magistrate. "You're sartin?" the man exclaimed in some excitement, and he was assured that there was no doubt at all. "Then," said he, "I'd thank you, your worship, to kindly give me back my line an' my ferret!"

His Tide of Fortune.

"There is a tide in the affairs of men," said the man who habitually quotes Shakespeare, "which, taken at its flood, leads on to fortune."

"Yes," replied the man who had married an heiress; "I remember the tide that led to my fortune well."

"What tide was that?"

"It was eventide, and we were sitting in the garden."—San Francisco Wasp.

"SINCE HUNG."

Speaking at a recent meeting of the Selborne society, Lord Avebury said the efforts of the society were yearly obtaining more success, especially in the protection of birds. It had even been proposed that no man should marry a woman who wore feathers in her hat. Much had also been done toward planting trees in the streets of our towns. Where the society had hitherto most failed was in the protection of plants, due to the unthinking wantonness of small children.

Sir John Cockburn, who spoke next, quoted a description of spring which he had read in the newspapers: "One cannot say spring has arrived until a man can put his foot upon six daisies." Such a man, he said, deserved never to enjoy another spring.

Sir George Keckwich also gave some amusing instances of vandalism, among them the following: One day he found "S. Hughes" cut upon a favorite peach tree. A few months later he found added, "Since hung."—Manchester Guardian.

An Old Wells-Fargo Ticket.

Mrs. Laura E. Howey, librarian of the State Historical society of Montana, has received from C. E. Reese of Virginia City one of the tickets used in the early sixties on the stage lines of Montana. It is from Virginia City to New York, issued by the Wells-Fargo company, the fare at that time being $180. The ticket is composed of eight coupons.

The first is by stage, supposedly to Salt Lake City, there being left a blank space to be filled in. From there it is over the Union Pacific railroad to Omaha, by omnibus to Council Bluffs and from there to Chicago over the Chicago and Northwestern railway.

From Chicago the ticket is over the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago to Pittsburg and from Pittsburg to Harrisburg over the Pennsylvania Central. From the latter place to New York the ticket calls for passage over the Allentown line to New York.

A Dearth of Poets at Oxford.

This year the Newdigate prize for English verse was not awarded, an event which has not happened for fifty-four years. In 1849 the subject was "Cæsar's Invasion of Britain," a theme which beggared the poetic talent of an entire university, though many copies of verses were sent in. This year the subject was "Charles I. at Oxford," a subject which, one would think, was well adapted to poetical treatment and, moreover, especially suited to the genius of the spot. The English verse prizes at the universities have been awarded to an extraordinary number of men who afterward attained distinction. The Newdigate prize, which was founded in 1806, has been won by John Ruskin, Matthew Arnold, Bishop Heber, Sir Edwin Arnold, Dean Milman, R. S. Hawker, John Addington Symonds, Mr. W. H. Mallock and a number of other distinguished men. —Westminster Gazette.

Saves Two from Death.

"Our little daughter had an almost fatal attack of whooping cough and bronchitis," writes Mrs. W. K. Haviland, of Armonk, N. Y.; "but, when all other remedies failed, we saved her life with Dr. King's New Discovery. Our niece, who had consumption in an advanced stage, also used this wonderful medicine, and to-day she is perfectly well." Desperate throat and lung diseases yield to Dr. King's New Discovery as to no other medicine on earth. Infallible for Coughs and Colds. 50c and $1.00 bottles guaranteed by R. R. BELLAMY, druggist. FRIDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 2.

POSTOFFICE DEPARTMENT.

Grand Jury Brought in Three More Indictments for Conspiracy to Defraud the Government.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—The grand jury of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia to-day brought in three more indictments in connection with the Postoffice Department investigation. One was a joint indictment against George W. Beavers, formerly chief of the salary and allowance division of the Postoffice Department, and State Senator George A. Green of Binghampton, N. Y. This indictment charges that they entered into a conspiracy to defraud the government. This it is alleged they accomplished in the sale of time clocks, from which sale they were able to reap a reward because of Beaver's connection with the department by which the clocks were purchased. The former indictments against Green and Beavers charged conspiracy against the United States.

The other two indictments were against Scott Towers, who has charge of one of the principal sub-postoffice stations in this city. He is accused of having received a commission on the sale of book typewriting machines to the government in contravention of 1781 and 1782 of the Revised Statutes, which prohibit officers or employes of the United States from receiving other compensation than their salaries for procuring contracts from the government or for services rendered.

The present grand jury will adjourn finally next Monday, and the expectation is that a number of other postoffice indictments will be returned on that day.

Immediately after receiving information of the indictment of Towers, the postmaster general issued an order to Postmaster Merritt of Washington, dismissing him from office.

THE PANAMA CANAL TREATY.

Recent Action of the Colombian Senate Not Considered of a Very Favorable Character.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—The State Department to-day received a cablegram from Minister Beaupre, at Bogota, dated September 30th, stating that the committee of the Colombian Senate which was appointed during the first debate on the report of the canal committee to prepare the material for the second debate, has submitted its report and it will be debated in a few days. This report approved the rejection of the treaty August 12th, but disapproves the proposal to enact a law to empower the president to open up negotiations for the construction of a canal under certain specified conditions. The object, the cablegram states, apparently is to leave the Colombian government at liberty to negotiate a fresh treaty without restrictions. It seems, says Minister Beaupre, that the report will probably be adopted.

The news contained in the above cablegram is not considered of a very favorable character at the State Department, indicating as it does that the Colombian Congress will refuse to give the president of Colombia a free hand in any future negotiations which may occur.

THE STEEL TRUST.

Syndicate Extended to July, 1904—Five Million Dollars Paid to Morgan & Co.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—The syndicate organized to convert $200,000,000 of United States steel 7% per cent. preferred stock into 5 per cent. sinking fund bonds expired to-day, according to the original terms, but by consent of a great majority of its members has been extended until July 1, 1904. Withdrawals from the syndicate, according to a leading member of the steel corporation, have been very small. The terms of the agreement between the steel corporation and the syndicate call for a distribution of between thirty-five and forty million dollars of bonds to members of the syndicate. This distribution was made in large part to-day. It is probable that some statement concerning the proportion of withdrawals will be made in a few days. The sum of five million dollars was paid to J. P. Morgan & Company to-day as syndicate manager. This represents a call for 25 per cent. of the twenty million dollars cash, to be paid for a like sum of bonds taken by the syndicate at par.

LINCOLNTON POSTOFFICE.

Mrs. Shipp, Who Wants to be Postmaster, Called on the President.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Among the callers on the President to-day was Mrs. Margaret Shipp, widow of Lieut. Wm. E. Shipp, of the Tenth cavalry, who was killed while leading his men in the charge on San Juan hill. Mrs. Shipp was presented to the President by former Senator Pritchard, now an associate justice of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia. She wants to be postmaster of Lincolnton, N. C. The present postmaster is F. A. Barkley, and he has the backing of the Republican State organization. The President, who knew Lieutenant Shipp well, in talking of him to Mrs. Shipp, said: "He took breakfast with me the morning he was killed. He was as true and brave a man as ever lived."

No decision as to the Lincolnton postmastership has been reached by the President, and none will be for a time.

The Democrats of Rhode Island in convention renominated Governor L. F. C. Garvin, of Cumberland, without opposition. The platform was confined exclusively to State issues.

ELECTROCUTION OF THREE BROTHERS.

Burton, Fred and Willis VanWormer, Who Murdered Their Uncle.

NO SENSATIONAL INCIDENT.

Walked to Their Doom With Calm Demeanor—Attended by Two Catholic Priests—The Crime for Which They Suffered.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

DANNEMORA, N. Y., Oct. 1.—Without one unforeseen incident to mar the perfect and dignified execution of the death penalty imposed by the trial court, sustained by the Court of Appeals, and not interfered with by Governor Odell, Willis, Frederick M., and Burton VanWormer were put to death in fifteen and one-half minutes at Clinton prison to-day for the murder of their uncle, Peter A. Hallenbeck, at Greendale, Columbia county, on Christmas eve, 1901. There was not one sensational circumstance connected with the execution. The men walked from the doors of their cells in the care of their priest and flanked on either side by prison deputies with calm demeanor but extreme pallor.

Father Belanger, a picturesque white haired figure, not in the robes of office but in the every day black frock cost of clerical cut, with a little purple stole about the shoulders, walked along with each of the condemned men in turn, saying words of consolation.

During the first execution Father Charbonneau remained in the corridor between the death cells, reading prayers and invocations to the remaining men to keep them from hearing more than the departure of their brother from the room. The doors had been padded and the interstices stuffed with cotton so that the steps of those who removed the lifeless body from the death chamber to the morgue could not be heard.

Three applications of the current and four minutes time were required for the execution of Willis, but only two applications of the full current were deemed necessary in the case of Frederick, and two minutes from the time he crossed the threshold of the room, the doctors pronounced him dead.

The bodies were carried out into the prison morgue, and the summons for the last brother was taken by the guards. Father Belanger went with them, and when Burton VanWormer was brought into the presence of death he was accompanied by two priests, Father Charbonneau having no further need to remain in the cell room.

Either Burton was taller than his brothers, or sat up straighter in the chair, for the strap which is intended to cover the eyes did not reach high enough to blindfold him, and as the current was switched on he was still looking over the upper edge of the strap toward the priest. He was killed even more quickly than the other two. Only one application of the current was required, though it was retained slightly longer at full pressure than in the other cases.

In the case of Willis, the current was on in the three contacts for sixty seconds; in that of Fred, with two contacts, one minute and five seconds; and that of Burton, with but one contact, one minute and thirteen seconds, so that the actual time consumed in executing the three men was five minutes and fifty-four seconds.

Father Belanger said after the execution that the last hours of the men were spent in exceeding quiet, with the strictest attention to the spiritual interests which were their sole concern.

The autopsy upon all three of the VanWormer boys revealed nothing unusual. In each case the condition of the brain, heart and other organs was absolutely normal.

Keeper Murphy awakened the young men shortly after 7 o'clock this morning. They were a little dazed at first, sound sleep in the later hours having followed the restlessness after midnight, but almost immediately they were awake to full realization of the fact that this was their last day.

Their new clothing was ready for them and they at once clothed themselves in the garb they would wear at the execution, a gray flannel shirt and dark trousers, each with the right leg split to the knee to allow the attachment of the lower electrode.

They took no breakfast, in accordance with the Catholic requirement to come fasting to their communion which Fathers Belanger and Charbonneau administered to them later. They said moreover that they would not eat again so that their meal at midnight was the last.

Frederick, the youngest, who has all along been the least impressed of the three, and at all times has shown more bravado than the others, said to Keeper Murphy as he dressed himself: "Well, I suppose by this time tomorrow we shall be in Kinderhook," evidently intimating that the brothers expect their bodies to be taken for burial to their home.

It would be difficult to imagine anything more impressive than the solemn service in the room of the steel cages, where Fathers Belanger and Charbonneau a little after 9 o'clock administered to the three brothers their first and last communion, signalizing their full acceptance into the faith of the RomanCatholic Church. To the fullest possible extent the privacy of the ceremony was assured, all keepers except the inexorable death watch being excluded.

No farewells were said, under Father Belanger's advice, until the grating of the big steel doors which separated them from the corridor was heard. Then, as Willis was led from his cell he was allowed to step over to the cells of Burton and Frederick and through the openings between the heavy bars of the cages in which they were confined, pressed his face and in turn kissed those of his two brothers at the same time shaking hands and saying as he turned away: "Be brave, boys."

As soon as Willis had passed out into the corridor leading to the death chamber, Father Charbonneau immediately began to read the prayers of consolation to which brief responses were necessary, thus occupying their minds in the minutes of suspense.

Then it came Frederick's turn to go. As he left the cell he stepped back a few paces to the front of Burton's cage, and grasping his brother's hands in both of his, kissed him repeatedly until the guard quietly urged him away.

Burton's departure from the death house made the most pathetic scene of all.

Besides the aged priest there was but one other person in the world to whom he might say good-bye. This was Allen Mooney, the last occupant of the death cells, who sat in the corner of the front of his cell sobbing like a child.

As Burton stepped from his cage he looked back toward Mooney's cell, which was out of his view because of a great iron screen built for that purpose, and called: "Good-bye, Mooney. I hope you won't have to go like this." And then he marched to the death chair.

In almost all respects the tragedy which closed to-day at Clinton prison was unique in modern criminal history. On Christmas eve, 1901, with their cousin, Harvey Bruce, the three Van Wormer brothers drove from their home in Kinderhook, some fourteen miles, to the hamlet of Greendale, in Columbus county, where lived Peter A. Hallenbeck, the home of the Van Wormers. Mr. Hallenbeck, his wife and his aged mother were sitting in the lamplight in their little room. A few moments later there was a knock at the door and Mr. Hallenbeck answered it, to find three masked men before him, armed with revolvers. Burton VanWormer led the way and with him the old man grappled. At once all four began a fusillade of pistol shots which fairly riddled the body of Mr Hallenbeck. Mrs. Hallenbeck, the wife, ran into the kitchen, and the brothers shot at her, but missed. Her husband ordered her to flee and she ran up stairs, whither the older woman had preceded her, and the two barricaded themselves in the attic.

Mr. Hallenbeck, although mortally wounded, broke away from his assailants and went to the landing of the stairs where he kept a loaded shotgun. The assailant saw him get the gun and fled. The old man fell to the floor and died.

Harvey Bruce turned State's evidence, and it was to a large extent upon his testimony that the conviction of the VanWormer brothers was secured. He swore that upon the ride back from the scene of the crime each of the brothers boasted of having shot the uncle.

It was shown that the bitterness which the brothers felt toward their uncle was due chiefly to his having foreclosed a mortgage upon the property in Greendale, owned by their step-mother, the loss of which compelled their removal to Kinderhook.

The triple execution of to-day raises to a total of 73 the list of the murderers who have died in the electric chair. The simultaneous execution of the three brothers is not unprecedented in the history of New York State, although to find the parallel one must go back to 1825, when three brothers were hanged in Buffalo for murder.

MASSACHUSETTS DEMOCRATS

Harmonious State Convention—Nominations — The Platform Reaffirms Democratic Principles.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

BOSTON, Oct. 1.—In a most harmonious State convention and with an enthusiasm greater than has been displayed in a gathering of the party in Massachusetts in many years, the Democrats of this State to-day nominated their leaders for the campaign of 1903. The candidates were nominated by acclamation, Wm. A. Gaston, of Boston, being named for Governor and Richard Olney, second, of Leicester, for Lieutenant Governor.

The platform reaffirms the principles of Democracy, declaring that the "Democratic party shall fight the trust oligarchy now as it fought the political oligarchy with Jefferson.

It denounces "the trusts" as "monopolies made by law—entrenched behind a prohibitive tariff, buttressed by subsidies and special rates—plunder our people with one hand while with the other they reach out for conquest, and sell their product cheap abroad that they may sell it dear at home."

It continues: "We despise that hypocrisy which outdoes populism in placing the treasury money at the service of favored banks and breaks laws to favor Wall street speculators. We favor the immediate regulation of trusts under the interState commerce and taxation powers of Congress and the admission free of duty of articles controlled by the trusts on raw materials of manufacture and the necessaries of life."

The platform demands reciprocity with Canada; that the Philippines be treated like Cuba; favors election of senators by popular vote and condemns lynchings everywhere.

PREMIER BALFOUR'S SPEECH.

First Heavy Gun Fired in the Fiscal Reform Campaign, Which is Absorbing Great Attention.

By Cable to the Morning Star.

LONDON, Oct. 1.—Addressing a mass meeting at Sheffield to-night, in connection with the conference of the national union of conservative associations, Premier Balfour delivered the speech which has been long heralded as the first heavy gun to be fired in the fiscal reform campaign, which is absorbing the attention of the united kingdom, its colonies, and indeed the whole world, and which has caused the present British cabinet crisis, the result of which it is impossible to foretell.

Mr. Balfour, in the course of his speech, did not even hint at the successors in the cabinet to Mr. Chamberlain, Lord George Hamilton and Mr. Ritchie. In fact, he did not mention the ministerial resignations, ignoring altogether that phase of the situation on which it was expected he would make some declaration. The premier confined himself strictly to the tariff question, and his speech was to a large extent a repetition of the arguments contained in his recent pamphlet.

LYNCHING IN TEXAS.

Negro Taken From Jail and Hanged by a Mob at Marshall.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

MARSHALL, TEXAS, Oct. 1.—A mob of several hundred men to-night battered its way into the jail, took out Walter Davis, a negro, and marched him to the west side of town where he was hanged to a tree.

The lynching was the result of the killing of Constable Hayes to-day, while he was taking a negro to jail. The officer was shot from ambush, being literally riddled with bullets. Shortly after the killing, Walter Davis and two other negroes were arrested and lodged in jail at Marshall.

A mob formed during the afternoon and attacked the jail. The local militia was ordered out and arrived at the jail after the mob had secured the negro. While part of the mob was talking to the militia officers, others slipped the negro out and spirited him away. Everything is now quiet.

FOURTH DAY OF TILLMAN TRIAL.

Time Taken Up With Reading Editorials in the Columbia State Newspaper.

ONLY ONE WITNESS EXAMINED

Thirty Columns of the Paper Were Read. All Referring to the Defendant About Two Columns More Yet to be Read---Tedious Task.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

LEXINGTON, S. C., Oct. 1.—The fourth day of the trial of James H. Tillman, charged with the murder of Editor Gonzales, which was closed with the adjournment of court to-day, was taken up almost wholly with the reading of editorials from the State newspaper, files of which covering 1902 were placed in evidence Tuesday by counsel for the State. It was not anticipated when the reading was begun that one-half the time would be consumed that was taken, and even then there are about two columns yet to be read in the morning. It is estimated that some thirty columns were read to-day. The papers from which the editorials were read run from the first of April to the end of the year 1902. The reading was a tedious task. Twice during the day Judge Gary suspended it momentarily because of the strain on the jurors, who listened intently throughout.

At the outset counsel for the defence asked that editorials other than those relating to James H. Tillman be read, but the court held that inasmuch as the files were placed in evidence by the State it was the province of the State to indicate what should be read. Counsel for the defence having previously inspected the files had a complete index to the editorials in the papers and closely followed the reading.

Counsel for the State announced at the beginning that all editorials referring to the defendant within the period beginning April 1st to the end of the year would be read. This covers the period in which the gubernatorial campaign for 1902 was carried on, and among the editorials read were those in opposition to the prospective candidacy of the defendant for the governorship of South Carolina. Others criticised the action of the defendant in sending a telegram to the President in connection with the Jenkins sword fund incident, while editorials read later in the day were comments on the election results.

But one witness was examined today, James W. King, a member of the Legislature from Florence county, who in answer to questions by the solicitor, after stating that he was in Columbia during the session of the Legislature last Winter, said: "On the day before the shooting I saw a pistol in Mr. Tillman's pocket."

He said on cross-examination that he was aware of unfriendly feelings between the defendant and N. G. Gonzales.

A FINANCIAL SENSATION.

Firms of John L. Williams & Son, of Richmond, Va., and J. William Middendorf & Co., of Baltimore.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 1.—A persistent rumor pervaded the financial district here to-day that J. William Middendorf and Company, of this city, and John L. Williams and Son, of Richmond, Va., were financially embarrassed. This interest declined to discuss the matter during the afternoon and evening, but late to-night after a conference which lasted several hours gave out the following statement:

"In view of the extraordinary and unexpected financial situation now existing in New York, Messrs John L. Williams & Sons of Richmond, Va., and J. William Middendorf & Company of Baltimore, have found it necessary to ask temporary indulgence of their creditors.

"The undersigned have, at the request of these two firms, consented to act as an advisory committee to examine into their condition, and promptly report an appropriate plan of extension. The committee will proceed to the immediate performance of this duty. In the meanwhile they believe it to be to the interest of all concerned, that no legal or other steps be taken by individual creditors to complicate the situation, but that the present status should in all respects be maintained for common protection and benefit.

"The above firms estimate that their assets, inventoried at current quotations, exceed their liabilities by a very large amount, which will be naturally augmented by the restoration of normal conditions.

"In view of the official relations of Mr. J. S. Williams and Mr. J. W. Middendorf with the Seaboard Air Line, they desire to state that neither the firm nor any member thereof is indebted to that company and that the Seaboard Air Line railway will be in no wise affected by the action of their respective firms in this matter."

(Signed) Douglas H. Thomas, Douglas H. Gordon, Robert C. Davidson, Jonn B. Ramsay, Eugene Levering, Baltimore; Eppa Hunton, Jr., Richmond, Va.; Frank O. Briggs, Trenton, N. J.

John Skelton Williams, who was in Baltimore to-night, said that the action taken was occasioned by the inability of the two firms mentioned above to collect large sums of money due them and to realize on securities in the present disturbed money market.

"The value of my firm's assets," said Mr. Williams, "are greatly in excess of all liabilities of every kind, and the present difficulties will be only temporary.

"None of the companies in which my firm and Mr. Middendorf's are largely interested, or with which members of these firms are officially connected, will be affected in any way by the action taken to-day. All of the properties held by us are in excellent and healthy condition and the outlook for them, without exception, is bright and thoroughly satisfactory."

SEABOARD AIR LINE.

An Abrupt Break in the Price of Shares. No Explanation.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—The shares of the Seaboard Air Line broke abruptly in the outside market shortly before the close to-day. The preferred declined 4¼ points and the common 3¼. There was no news to account for the decline and at the office of the company's financial representative no information was obtainable.

A mysterious robbery occurred yesterday at a saloon in Memphis. The safe was opened by parties who apparently were familiar with the combination and $3,000 was stolen. There is no clue to the identity of the robbers.

ERNEST HAYWOOD ON TRIAL IN WAKE COURT.

Jury Secured Yesterday, All From the Country—Bench Warrant for Contempt—Array of Counsel.

[Special Star Telegram.]

RALEIGH, N. C., Oct. 1.—Ernest Haywood was arraigned in Wake Superior Court to-day to answer the charge of murder for killing Ludlow Skinner, a highly esteemed young business man, on February 21. The entire day was consumed in selecting a jury, the regular jurors and 250 special veniremen being almost exhausted before the jury was finally completed. As empanelled, it will consist of ten farmers, two country merchants; not a single Raleighite being included. Both sides made a hard fight over the drawing of the jury, but seem satisfied. One hundred veniremen were challenged for cause. Fifteen others were perniptorily challenged by defendant's counsel and nineteen by State's counsel. A great number of others were excused from service for various reasons.

Taking testimony begins to morrow morning. J. W. Wyatt, a prominent citizen of the county, was arrested on a bench warrant from Judge Peebles and brought before on him a charge of busying himself among the veniremen likely to become jurors on the case, expressing his opinion against Haywood and suggesting Haywood should be found guilty. An earnest appeal from counsel and Wyatt constrained the judge to dismiss him with a very severe reprimand. It is expected the case will require ten days for trial.

There are seven attorneys for the defence, all local and headed by Jas. H. Pou and Col. T. M. Argo, and five for the State, headed by W. E. Daniel, of Weldon, J. E. Woodward, of Wilson, and Donald Gilliam, of Tarboro.

(By Associated Press.)

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Oct. 1.—A special to the Observer from Raleigh says Ernest Haywood was placed on trial there to-day for the killing of Ludlow Skinner. The jury was secured at 4:35 in the afternoon. The examination of witnesses will begin in the morning. There was a little sensation during the day when the judge announced that he had been informed by two of Haywood's attorneys, Messrs. Pou and Argo, that J. W. Wyatt had been seeking to influence some of the jury. An instanter bench warrant was issued for Wyatt, who was brought into court and who, in response to the question said he had spoken to his brother-in-law, one of the special venire, and had expressed his opinion that Haywood was guilty, but denied anything further. Attorney Norris for the prosecution demanded the name of the man who had informed Attorneys Pou and Argo that Wyatt had tried to influence some of the jury. Argo gave the name of his informer and said the latter was not afraid to come into court and tell what he knew. The judge discharged Wyatt for the present, but said if any more evidence came to him he would have him rearrested and the charges fully investigated.

MOB LAW IN OHIO.

Jail at Oxford Surrounded by Men Seeking to Lynch a Kentuckian Who Shot Five Men.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

OXFORD, O., Oct. 1.—A mob is surrounding the jail to lynch one of a band of Kentuckians who to-night shot and dangerously wounded five persons on the street during a fair. Another of the Kentucky men is so badly wounded he will die. Sheriff Bisdorf has started from Hamilton for Oxford to get the prisoner, but will probably be too late. All preparations are complete for the lynching.

Two of the Kentuckians were named Jossph and John Spivey, Marshal Woodruff and his deputy, Jacob Manrod, endeavored to arrest them, and were shot, Marshall Woodruff in the right breast and Deputy Manrod in the left wrist A crowd started in pursuit of the Spivey brothers and overtook them. Joseph Spivey was shot in the right side with a load of buckshot and his brother was knocked unconscious with a stone thrown by some one in the crowd of pursuers. During the fight a stranger who refused to give his name, was shot in the abdomen and is in a dangerous condition.

THE MACEDONIAN QUESTION.

Strong Belief in Sofia That It Can Only be Settled by War.

By Cable to the Morning Star.

SOFIA, BULGARIA, Oct. 1.—The war ministry has ordered out the annual contingent of recruits for October 14th, instead of at the beginning of the year, as usual. This step, though quite constitutional, has occasioned some surprise, considering the reported improvement in the general situation.

While the conditions are undoubtedly more hopeful, there is a strong belief in many well informed quarters that the Macedonian question is still very threatening and can only be settled by war. The Bulgarian government, therefore, continues preparations for eventualities. In the meantime the Turkish diplomatic agent is conferring with the ministers here, and the new Bulgarian diplomatic agent at Constantinople, W. Matchovics, goes to that city to-morrow.
